

THE NEWS TODAY

(according to The New York Times)

Cold-blooded frogs are living in warm Antarctica and the US is bracing for a grim milestone in deaths. It will be a clean demise though, bodies bleached from within, on the advice of the President and whichever advisor he might be listening to today.

Rich restaurant owners and airline bosses are demanding a bail-out instead of using their reserves; these are stories which might transport us elsewhere or at the very least make us informed and angry. Will coronavirus alter the college experience? How long will this lockdown go on? How dare we be caged up alone for the sake of our common good! Idiots insist upon personal freedom as an excuse to die. I say let them, no one is sure what will happen next, but inside Joe Biden's cloistered campaign cocktail hour is back and couples scramble to get married in tuxedos, gowns and masks. We all need to reconnect and not inject bleach. Crab on toast is a favourite recipe for disaster.

© Rupert M Loydell